Observations

By Bob Walsh

THE RIGHT TO SEE

There has been much said in this nation about the right to know. It also has been said and often quoted that a single picture is worth a thousand words. And with this trite beginning we suggest that one of our basic freedoms, constantly at stake and always an issue, moves into the realm of the camera . . . still, movie, and televised.

Television is not just today. It is very much tomorrow. And unless it is well grounded at this early stage of development, much harm can come to all people who will be influenced by what they see there.

For this reason the Observer has given far more space to this one medium than might normally be the case if entertainment were the sole concern. But the freedom of the press for which so many have fought, and still do, has a new instrument. The eye in your living room.

Education also has a new vehicle in television. Though its limited use in actual academic fields still is greatly limited, its influence on the minds of a nation is extremely potent. As so many believe all they read, so do they believe all they see. And believing or not, they absorb much that is passed off as entertainment, and will have their thinking channeled accordingly.

Because of this the Observer devotes many columns to criticism, constructive we hope, to all forms of entertainment, and especially to television. The people must learn that it is their right to direct its future; it is their privilege to have television as they want it; it is their responsibility to insist on a quality of programs that will be of real benefit to their children and to all who lean so heavily on this new method of entertainment and source of information.

The right of free press applies also to those who use television and radio to bring you the news. So we find it encouraging and informative to read what two gentlemen in fields very close to this medium and to public relations, as applied to top government officials, have to say. We are referring to Eric Sevareid and James Hagerty.

Mr. Sevareid is a highly respected radio and television commentator who has known his frustrated moments at the hands of fearful sponsors. Mr. Hagerty is press secretary for the President and a former newsman. His statement was made as a guest on Wide World when the Washington press was the subject.

First let's hear from Mr. Sevareid as he spoke on the Emmy awards program:

"You have been watching tonight some of the most powerful people in the world. Not necessarily, the wisest or the most gifted. But the most powerful.

"The power to compel the eye and the ear is the greatest power there is . . . for it is the power to affect thought. And what a country thinks, it is. Never before has so much power to do so much good or harm, to so many, been placed in the hands of so few.

"I do not believe that they are all -- or even very many of them -- insensitive of this. More often than their critics think, they have their private moments of humility -- indeed of fear -- because of this prodigious public trust given, by rather pell-mell circumstance, into their care.

"This industry was only born yesterday. As a business, it grows faster than we on this side of the little red camera eye can grow as individuals, because we are only humans. We need your help. Not just the help of the "Yes" or "No" in a check-marked public opinion poll or statistical audience survey. Your true help -- your ideas -- your concern. For if you do not help, then those present cynics who say the American audience will take anything it gets, and deserves all it gets, will indeed have a case.

"The artists and technicians and producers and directors and executives here assembled do not believe the cynics' claim.

"We know what we have to do. We have to amuse, and there we have done well, I think . . . To inform, and there we make steady progress. . . To instruct, and there we have a long way to go. . . To inspire, and there is the longest untraveled way of all.

"Help us find the way.

"Help make us make ourselves work at only one level . . . our best.

"That would be an award on which the gold would never tarnish."

Mr. Hagerty's comment was:

"I think the most important change that the President has made is permitting radio to tape and television, through cameras, to film and record his news press conferences. We believe, the President and myself and everybody else in the White House, that a camera has just as much of a place in the White House, that a camera has just as much of a place in a press conference as a reporter with a pencil, and we have tried to follow that out in our dealings with the news media."

* * *

Now, if Mr. Hagerty's boys in Washington would practice what he preaches . . . and also Mr. Hagerty . . . and if television moguls would receive enough public support to lend them the courage to face up to heavily sugared sponsors, some of this freedom, to which we have an inherited right, might come about.

But don't lean on your ancestors. Paul Revere's horse ran out of oats away back, and the truth continues to be an evasive asset for which a free people must constantly struggle if we are to be sufficiently informed to demand the best from our leadership and make the most of our nation.

WATCH CHARM QUALITY

If the American car makers could add a few of the touches used by their European competitors, and long wanted by many motorists, the foreign invasion might not be a threat. We suspect they are right when they predict that most Americans do not want a tiny car. But there must be a middle ground.

An Opel was driven into our parking lot last week for our inspection. Here is a foreign car that is a little more than the flea-sized puddle-hoppers that serve many as the "second" car. The Opel is large enough to handle four people in reasonable comfort. It has more room in the rear compartment than do the mites and it has a bigger car look than many of its overseas cohorts.

The trade-in value of some foreign cars should shame Americans. This is not based on demand alone. It also is due to quality. The Opel, which is being imported by Buick, will not rust out as quickly as many domestic cars. Its chrome is placed over a copper coating.

We understand that this is the difference between the American car of today and the one we drove before the war. The metal today is not plated by a protective covering, and is quite porous. The result is that rust puts in its licks before the first year is out if paint or chrome is chipped away . . . and in traffic and parking chipping will occur.

There are many little refinements which cars could add to make motorizing more pleasant and convenient. The little wind-breaking window near the front is a finger-pincher on most American cars. The Opel has a simple disk which can be turned to open and shut this window.

It is very fine to have a light come on when you open the doors, but there are times when you would like to have the doors open without the lights glaring. The Opel has a neutral switch which shuts them off. On most American cars you have to place your hand or foot against the button on the door jam to keep the light off, and this is of no help if you want to open them without a glimmer.

Spaciousness is a puzzler to us when it comes to comparing the giants made on our production lines and the mites which come over by boat. Though there is more room in our cars there does not seem to be as much more as there should be when you consider the comparative sizes. If the driver has long legs, the back seat passengers are apt to find their knees touching the front seat even in many of America's huge models. And the room in the dashboard cupboard is not as large as is found in some foreign imports.

Then there is the little matter of over thirty miles to a gallon of gasoline. That sounds mighty good to the household budget balancer.

LOOK, NO RIBBONS

One of these days you may be amazed to watch lines form on a piece of paper which is rolled into a typewriter that has no ribbon. In fact it can be done right now. They also are making duplicate copies on typewriters . . . without carbon paper.

Next step? Dry photography. Take your picture and there it is in seconds with no liquids involved.

The trick is liquid droplets of extremely minute size coated with gelatin. The paper is coated with them and pressure does the rest.

We predict something even more radical. We soon will be printing photographically instead of using type. Specially coated paper will print when exposed to a negative, and if this can be done in stacks, printing will be speeded up so much that the production of a thousand letterheads will require seconds instead of minutes.

of cancer through the study of cigarette smoke may be solved this year. Thus far the scientists have collected the tars and nicotines deposited from drags on the fags and have studied the contents therein. Little progress has resulted.

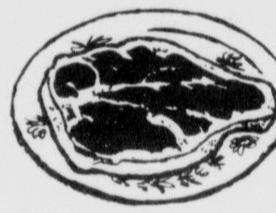

Now it is believed that whatever there is in these portions of the cigarettes to cause cancer must be active only when hot. Analyzation of the chemicals at lip-position heat may produce more than an answer to whether or not tobacco is one cause of cancer. It also may reveal a factor which no doubt will appear in many other forms which come in contact with our populace.

OUR INCOME TAX SIEVE: Pension Plans, Stock Options Save Employers' Tax Dollars

By Jack Steele

Scripps-Howard Staff Writer

WASHINGTON. -- If you happen to be one of the 15 million American workers now covered by private pension or retirement plans, you are benefiting from a form of tax avoidance.

The income tax laws discriminate in many ways against wage and salary earners, but they also provide some tax-saving gimmicks for employees.

These devices -- including pension plans -- usually go under the name of "fringe benefits."

They make it possible for wage earners to avoid paying taxes on indirect or deferred compensation paid by their employers.

These fringe benefits do not provide tax savings as big or as sensational as those that wealthy taxpayers get from depletion allowances or capital gains.

But the total taxes avoided by these devices are substantial. Today they probably exceed a billion dollars a year. And they are increasing steadily.

The World War II wage freeze gave pension plans and other fringe benefits their big start. While the government frowned on pay raises, it often approved fringe benefits. And employers readily granted them, since the government was taking most of their profits in taxes anyway.

After the war, labor unions continued their drive for more and bigger pensions and other fringe benefits. The reason they usually gave was that these side gains provided greater "security" for wage earners.

But there was another reason for the stepped-up drive for more fringe benefits -- union leaders had awakened to their tax advantages. And Congress constantly has expanded these tax savings to encourage private pension and retirement programs.

As a result, employers now contribute some $3 billion a year in tax-exempt funds to such pension programs. If this money were paid directly to employees to save for their own retirement, it would be taxable at ordinary income rates.

More than $30 billion now is invested in these pension funds. By the early 1960s the total is expected to hit $40 billion, with employer contributions rising to $5 billion a year. And the income of these pension funds also is tax exempt.

Here are the tax benefits Congress and the Treasury have approved for "qualified" pension plans which meet certain conditions laid down by the government:

- Employees are not taxed currently on employer contributions to these funds.

- Employers can deduct their contributions as current business expenses.

- All the income received by pension funds from investments in stocks, bonds and real estate is tax-exempt.

- Pension benefits are taxable when received as ordinary income. But retired workers who receive these benefits often can escape all or most of their taxes as a result of double exemptions, deductions and other special benefits for the aged.

- Pension benefits paid in lump sums are taxed only at low capital gains rates.

Similar tax advantages also apply to two related fringe benefits:

PROFIT-SHARING PLANS: These work the same as pension plans, except that employer contributions and benefits fluctuate according to the employer's earnings.

STOCK-BONUS PLANS: They enjoy the same tax benefits if stock rather than cash is set aside for future delivery to employees.

Other types of fringe benefits also give substantial tax advantages to wage and salary earners. Here are a few of them:

GROUP LIFE INSURANCE: Premiums paid by employers are not taxed as income to employees. Benefits, like all insurance payments, are tax-exempt.

HEALTH AND ACCIDENT INSURANCE: Premiums paid by employers are not taxed as income to employees. Some benefits also are tax-exempt.

SICK PAY: An employee gets tax exemption for up to $100 a week for pay received while he is unable to work because of illness.

MEDICAL CHECK-UPS: If provided or paid for by the employer, they are not taxed as income to the employee.

MEALS AND LODGING: If provided for the employer's convenience, they are not taxable income for the employee.

EMPLOYEE DISCOUNTS: They are not counted as income to the employee if the amounts are moderate and are intended to promote good will.

Congress and the Treasury have shown no disposition to shut off or limit these tax advantages for fringe benefits.

Congress, in fact, is now considering proposals to give special tax exemptions for retirement pay saved by self-employed persons such as doctors, lawyers and other professionals.

These proposals would permit self-employed taxpayers to exempt a percentage of their income from taxes provided they salt it away in annuities or retirement insurance policies.

Labor unions at the same time are demanding and getting more fringe benefits through contract negotiations. Employers usually are willing to grant them, since they cost no more than comparable wage increases.

Not all fringe benefits go to blue-collar workers. Some which are tailored to fit only highly paid executives also have been granted special tax treatment by Congress and the Treasury. They include:

STOCK OPTIONS: The post-war boom of the stock market has created a bonanza for stock options. Here is the most common plan:

A company gives its top executives options to buy specified amounts of its stock in the future. The price is set at 95 percent of the stock's current market value.

If the stock goes up, the executive-employee exercises his option and buys the stock at many points below the price at which it is then selling.

If the employee holds the stock for two years after receiving his option and six months after its actual purchase, he can sell it and pay only low capital gains taxes on his profits.

Stock options thus help executives to convert ordinary income into capital gains.

They have become so popular and widely used that the stock market sag late last year was a personal blow to many of the nation's top executives.

The drop in stock prices blocked them from getting extra pay they had anticipated from stock options.

DEFERRED COMPENSATION:

Many companies have long-term contracts to continue paying their executives after retirement. Such pay is taxed as ordinary income when received, but retired employees have to pay less taxes on it than they would if they collected it before retirement. These contracts apparently are valid, if the employee agrees to serve as a consultant and not to work for competitors after retiring.

SPLIT-DOLLAR INSURANCE:

The employer and employee split premium costs, with the employer paying only an amount equal to the policy's cash surrender value. If the employee dies, the employer gets back the cash-surrender value of the policy and the employee's beneficiaries the rest of the insurance. The employer's contribution is counted for tax purposes as an interest-free loan. It enables the employee to carry more life insurance than he could afford otherwise.

By Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON -- If J. Robert Oppenheimer will only be patient a little longer, he has it on the word of White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty that a dandy government job is about to open up here for a man of Oppenheimer's intellectual caliber.

Speaking last week-end at the Women's National Press Club dinner for editors, Hagerty undertook to show how life can be beautiful even for reporters by describing "the next White House Press Secretary." In the popular new space prose, he sketched a type roughly resembling the valedictorian of the Institute of Advanced Studies at Princeton where Dr. Oppenheimer now sits and thinks for everybody but Lewis Strauss.

This 1960 paragon, according to Hagerty, should know at least one foreign language and enough science and economics to guide reporters on their coverage of world-wide instantaneous broadcasts to be relayed around the world from earth satellites.

Hagerty also broke the bad news to Burning Tree, the Augusta Golf Club and other haunts of such relatively elemental pastimes as golf and bridge. The next President, he said, would be busy whirling around the world on jet airplanes handling matters of vital import to the whole race of man including the Hottentots.

Hagerty's opening remarks appeared to indicate his view that night school couldn't start too soon for the kind of reporters he was accustomed to dealing with. He was only getting some of his own back, however, when he quoted their silly questions to him, and considering what has often happened to him at their hands he was well within his rights.

It was the serious Hagerty who shook the old front-page types in his audience. They don't really care whether he can speak French or Vietnamese if he will only speak up and allow others involved in the passing scene to do so.

He will be freely forgiven for not understanding the Gaither Report if he will arrange to have the White House let go of it. Reporters will explain to him the economics of the Atomic Energy Commission acting as a power broker in the Dixon-Yates contract if he will persuade Sherman Adams to discuss with them the part Adams played in it.

Nobody expects the Press Secretary to be a doctor, but they would like access to the doctors who have treated the President in his last two illnesses and are treating him now.

The increasing extent to which Hagerty acts as a maker of news and policy rather than as a conduit for it has long distressed many reporters. He remains extremely efficient in the technical aspects of news gathering and dissemination, but more and more reporters are shut off from the kind of give and take with Administration officials which enables them to achieve an insight into the news.

Information is not too hard to get in this teeming bureaucracy. Hagerty is an expert at feeding it out. What counts is the chance to dig for what is left unsaid and the demeanour of the witness as he explains his position.

It is indeed a new world and reporters need to be reminded of it, but some problems of their trade remain the same.

A Lass and A Lack

According to the story . . . In the days before public water supplies, a young tavern maid said she took an "all-over bath" only when the river was warm. Strangely enough, most people of the time were content to bathe just as haphazardly.

Such apparent lack of cleanliness by the serving lass, and others of the "oaken bucket era," is better understood when we remember . . . At least seven pails of water (lugged from well to stove to wash-tub) were needed for every hot bath.

Now neither hardship nor luxury . . . In the daily life of millions, the bath has become both a "business" and a pleasure.

A clean body is more apt to be healthy!

Natural gas pipelines have to be protected to give many years of trouble-free service while buried in the ground.

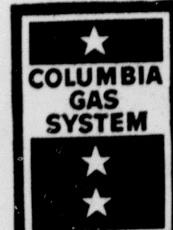

In some areas, before it is "put to bed," the pipe is coated with enamel and wrapped in a combination of glass fiber and felt. This, and other methods, help prevent rust and corrosion for thousands of miles of steel pipe that brings natural gas into your home.

Such precautions allow you to enjoy a steady supply of Nature's "wonder fuel" for heating, cooking, and many other uses—uses that are so natural in this area where natural gas was originally discovered and put to work.

It is the hope of the Hospital Auxiliary Board, with Miss Mary Craft as president, that a substantial sum will be realized to be spent on some important hospital improvement. With this in mind, the price of the tour has been cut to a minimum, so that everyone will be able to take the tour.

The kitchens to be included in the tour, together with information as to where tickets may be secured, will be published later.

ANNUAL WARREN CIVIC ORCHESTRA CONCERT . . . will be held at Beatty auditorium Sunday, May 4, at 3:30. Miss Zora Early, who has taught choral music at Beatty for three years, will be soprano soloist. She has selected "Les Filles de Cadiz", by Leo Delibes, and "Let My Song Fill Your Heart", by Ernest Charles, as her solo numbers. This is Miss Early's debut in Warren with the orchestra.

Some members not only play the instrument they perform in the orchestra, but often another instrument or two, and sing as well. Such is the case of Mrs. James Potter, who has been a valued viola player with the orchestra since its inception, and the piano playing a prominent part in her life. Since coming to Warren, she has become a regular performer at Philomel Club programs and is music supervisor at St. Joseph's School. Her solo with string accompaniment will be the Presto movement from Sonata in G by Haydn.

Khrushchev May Be Our Russian Hope

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- The official reluctance in Washington to agree to a summit conference has been well advertised, and persuasive arguments can be made against another showy heads-of-government meeting that in a few days could never begin to resolve the basic differences between the two halves of the divided world.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' fears have so often been expressed: that such a conference would create the illusion of peace, with the threat of aggression as great as ever; that it would lead to total relaxation in the West and a breakup of the NATO alliance; that all this would happen while the Soviet Union remained heavily armed behind the barrier of total security.

But how does the proposed -- opinion here largely accepts it as an inevitability -- summit conference look to the neutrals and to those countries close to the Soviet orbit but not actually in it? It is important to understand a viewpoint which finds so little expression in this country and which represents not only governments but at least some public sentiment in Poland, Yugoslavia, India and other Asian and Middle-Eastern countries.

It is central to this view that Nikita Khrushchev really wants peace. He must deal with a kind of public opinion in the Soviet Union represented by the 40,000,000 or so Russians who have had some degree of education and who are moving up in the Soviet system and who want peace with security.

Khrushchev must also, however, deal with another element. His position is not nearly as strong as that of the old dictator, Stalin. Those whom he forced out of power, Vyacheslav Molotov, Georgi Malenkov and the others, are still very much alive and they have their following inside Russia.

In the neutralist view, if these men came back to power, they would resume the aggressive Stalinist line. They would push so hard, take such chances, as to create a far greater danger than exists today. Therefore, the West has no alternative but to try to come to terms with Khrushchev on the basis of the world as it exists today.

To refuse or to go to the summit with the purpose of proving that no agreement is possible is to risk the nuclear annihilation that both sides live in dread of. It is to court the overthrow of Khrushchev and the return of "adventures" believing in the inevitability of armed conflict between Communism and capitalism.

"Why should you be afraid of peaceful competition?" the neutralist asks. "Is this because you are afraid you cannot win that competition?

"With 10 years of peace you will find great changes taking place inside the Soviet Union. It will not come all at once and it may seem to come grudgingly, but living standards must rise for those who have been educated and who now hold jobs in science and technology. This is the change that Khrushchev wants to bring about."

However misguided this view may seem from the perspective of the West, it is widely held. Partly, the motivation is fear -- fear of a nuclear war that could be triggered by an accident. Khrushchev has skillfully played on this fear. Partly, the motivation is the same desire for peace and an end of cold war tensions that is said to prevail among many Russians who have had a taste of a better life.

This view also has great attraction in Socialist-pacifist Britain, in West Germany, and to a lesser degree, in France. European opinion is definitely shifting. If an election were held today in Britain, a government would almost certainly come to power prepared to arrive quickly at terms with Khrushchev either with or without the United States.

Here is the threat on the not-too-distant horizon: America's partners will make their own peace with Moscow after a series of governmental changes not too hard to forecast. Even in France, where there is a greater resistance to the neutralist view, Soviet representatives are whispering that Algeria really belongs to France and a government in Paris based frankly on that assumption could get along with Moscow and not have to put up with "American meddling."

The facts of world opinion, and particularly opinion in Western nations allied with the United States, cannot be ignored, no matter how attractive is the case in theory against negotiation with the Russians. Dulles has lately shown signs of adjusting the American position to these facts. But the pace of change in relation to the rapidly mounting pressures must seem painfully slow.

TIRED REVIVAL

"The Red Mill," it says here in a brochure sent out before that ninety-minute musical was done on CBS-TV on Saturday, "produced by Fred Coe, directed by Delbert Mann, music by Victor Herbert, adaptation by Robert Alan Aurthur, choreography by Eugene Loring with Donald O'Connor, Shirley Jones, Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Elaine Stritch, Evelyn Rudie and Harpo Marx."

There is not a soul there who is not wildly talented or terribly attractive or both and it should, if show business was simply a matter of arithmetic (ten talents will make ten times as good a show as one talent), have been a wow. But some instinct warned me in advance that, not only was it NOT going to be a wow but that it was going to be a stinker. And it was. Somehow when they start loading up that much talent on one defenseless ninety minutes, you get the idea that something is terribly wrong to start out with.

What was wrong to start out with here was "The Red Mill" which was very hot stuff in 1908 when Fred Stone starred in it but which strenuously resisted modernization. Simply adding a good deal of talk about the Brussels Fair, certainly up-to-date talk, didn't seem to add any great urgency to the story which sounded awfully as if the actors were making it up as they went along. Donald O'Connor is a tremendous bundle of talent but was kept awfully well under wraps and only his considerable charm was permitted to peep through.

Miss Stritch and Miss Jones were also permitted to exercise their charm but not much talent. The unfortunate Mr. Nichols and Miss May, who are a very funny team of young comics, were not even permitted charm, having been imbedded in roles as spoiled and impossible young movie stars. Both for the show and for their own budding careers, this was a terrible mistake. Even Victor Herbert's music, which is indestructible, seemed a little tired and tentative and some of the new lyrics were disastrous.

Have there ever been any book musicals on television that were any good? Well, there was "Peter Pan" which, incidentally, was produced by Fred Coe, and there was "Annie Get Your Gun" -- both with Mary Martin and both preceded by long stage runs to get the kinks out. I can recall no other good ones and I can remember a good many other bad ones. Perhaps the only solution is advance tryouts.

Sunday night I watched the Dinah Shore show which was neither the best nor the worst of her weekly shows. It was simply a routine Shore show which is to say a very good one -- colorful, tuneful, witty, gay, beautifully directed and produced and very tightly packaged. There were nowhere near the assembly of big names to put it over and yet I'd say it was about five times better a show than "The Red Mill."

Why? Well, I think a trained expert crew that had worked together many times has a lot to do with it. On this show, Miss Shore brought out the three Emmys her show had won and used that as an excuse to line her crew up behind her. It's an impressive roster all right and in all the small details of lighting and sound and camera work and settings and costuming and all the other myriad things that go into a live show, it is a very seasoned team.

Also, simply the fact that Miss Shore and her crew do it every week makes it easier, at least on a show of this sort. Much of the first night strain disappears on a show which bobs up week after week. It's not, after all, now or never. Of course, it helps to have someone as personable and talented and inexhaustible as Miss Shore around but, let's face it, she has been very carefully handled by a team that includes Bob Banner, her director; and Ticker Freeman, her musical advisor.

Du Pont has had poor luck with its musicals which have not added up to the sum of their parts. Next DuPont May 9 will be a live dramatization of Emily Bronte's "Wuthering Heights" with Richard Burton.

Power Lobby Must Pay For Brainwashing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in the "Statesmen's Series" of columns being written by distinguished personages in the government, national affairs, business and the military for Thomas L. Stokes, who is seriously ill.)

By Estes Kefauver
U. S. Senator from Tennessee

WASHINGTON. -- In these days when there's so much brainwashing going on, I think we ought to give Russell C. Harrington, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, a pat on the back for putting a crimp in some of it.

Back in 1949, the National Association of Electric Companies -- that is, the private power lobby -- made a public opinion survey. It was an honest survey -- and, therefore, the results were somewhat discouraging to the power lobby.

It found, for instance, that 63 percent of the people of the United States approved of TVA. Only 10 percent disapproved. The rest had no opinion. It even found that 45 percent of its own employees thought TVA was a good idea. Only 40 percent of the private power employees opposed it. Again, the rest had no opinion.

This, I think, was the blow that sent the private power propagandists reeling. Not even their own people fully believed in them!

But they had another question in their survey, also. This one was: "Would socialism be a good thing or a bad thing for the United States?"

Here they found only 10 percent of the people thought socialism would be good. Sixty-nine percent said it would be a bad thing. And 21 percent had no opinion.

The Electric Companies Advertising Program -- an association of companies which varies between 50 and 150 private utilities banded together for advertising purposes -- laid down the new propaganda line that would be followed. In a little pamphlet, intended only for distribution among private power officials and officials of the public relations and advertising concerns that handle the program, the association reported on these surveys. There was an ECAP leak, however, and this is the line set forth:

"From the preceding charts," the pamphlet read, "it is apparent that to link our fight to the TVA question would run us into a lot of opposition, most of it based on lack of knowledge. But to link our fight to socialism is something else again. The people do not want socialism."

"We're on favorable ground there. ECAP advertising in magazines and on the radio will stress the fight against the socialistic state more in the future. It should be stressed, too, on the local level -- in speeches, radio talks, interviews and other public expressions of management opinion."

From that time on, right up to about the middle of February, the American people were subjected to a steady diet of that propaganda. I have a little booklet in which are reprinted 169 such advertisements that ran in the Saturday Evening Post alone.

Through the years this operation has been broadened into a lobby against REAs, Hells Canyon, Niagara River development, as well as TVA and other public power developments.

It involves millions of dollars in advertising costs in the slick magazines, radio and television. The "message" usually ends up something like this:

"Those who want a socialistic America know that when government takes over electricity, it is a step toward the control of every business, farm and family. The time to stop the spread of socialized electricity is now. That's why these facts are brought to you by America's business-managed, taxpaying Electric Light and Power Companies."

They've been very successful -- even President Eisenhower started referring to TVA as an example of "creeping socialism."

Now what has Mr. Harrington done about this -- and why does he deserve a pat on the back?

Almost a year ago I wrote him and asked him what about these advertisements -- so obviously political, so obviously designed to affect legislation? Are they tax-deductible as

TE LA DI OWBUF TO CARRY FOUR 13-WEEK PROGRAM SERIES

Four new educational series, each running for 13 weeks, will be televised by NBC-TV affiliated station WBUF. Three of the series continue the Notebook theme: Briefing Session, starting April 27, 12:30 to 1 p. m.; Report From America, beginning May 4, at 11:30 to 12 noon; and Decision For Research, May 4, 12:00 to 12:30. The fourth in the series "The Subject Is Jazz", begins Saturday, May 10, at 1 p. m. Briefing Session will aim to explore the major world issues facing U. S. foreign policy, to present facts pertaining to the issue in a manner which allows the viewer to weigh and evaluate for himself the various viewpoints involved. Subjects for the first three weeks will be "The Western Alliance", "The Future of Germany", and "Iron Curtain Countries".

Report From America, an exploration on film of certain aspects of American life, carries these successive weekly titles: "The American Farmer", "Automation", "Home Building in America", "How America Shops", "American Roads & Traffic", "How Pittsburgh Cured Its Smog", "A Small-town Newspaper", "The Immigrant", "Old Age In America", "How America Spends Its Leisure Hours", "A Presidential Nominating Convention", "The American Railroad" and "American Air Safety".

Decision For Research lists the first four of its weekly sessions: "The Mysterious Pulse", "When Pathways Divide" (operating techniques of a research team), "Intruder In the Life Stream" (scavenger calls), and "The Reluctant Host" (transplantation of human tissue). ***

WHO WATCHES TV?

The Great American Captivity, which claims millions to a box-like contraption in the living room (and various other parts of the house), is gradually spreading its dominion over the rest of the world. One year ago, there were 41 million TV sets in the U. S., a figure which undoubtedly has increased much in the past 12 months. Growing even at a more rapid pace is the infiltration of television in other countries.

Latest figures for TV sets abroad list 2.1 million for the first quarter of this year alone, bringing the total to 18.5 million with the prediction that by the end of the year the total number of TV sets abroad will be 25 million. Leading the list are the United Kingdom with 8.5 million, Russia with 2.5 million, West Germany with 1.5 million and Japan with 1 million sets.

Proof that America still has a listening ear is revealed in radio figures: there were 128 million working radio sets in the U. S. one year ago. This figure also shows a healthy annual growth, nourished by portable and car radios.

ADDENDA

CHESTER HUNTLEY'S first hand report on "Israel: The Next 10 Years" was previously scheduled to be shown in two telecasts, May 4 and May 11. This has been cancelled and the documentary will be televised in a 90-minute program on Sunday, May 18, from 4 to 5:30 p. m. The change was made because of the "spectacular nature and unusual importance" of the report.

ED SULLIVAN has hopes of doing a one-hour TV program starring the Moiseyev Dance Company of Moscow. Negotiations are in progress.

NEXT SEASON PROGRAMS

KRAFT TV THEATRE will not be seen in its present format next season on NBC, 'tis said. The sponsor, Kraft Foods, has purchased the first half-hour of the present time slot and is considering Milton Berle as a possible attraction. The remainder of the hour has not yet been filled.

WAGON TRAIN will meander across the mesa again next season.

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE is renewing its 52-week contract with CBS for a continuing series of documentary productions. "Air Power" will be a summer repeat and "20th Century" will return in the fall.

FRANK SINATRA concludes his first season on June 27 but will not return as a weekly feature next season. ABC-TV has no plans for Sinatra during 1958-59, although he may be starred in one or two special programs. Sinatra's sponsors, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., has purchased a film series titled "Steve Canyon" for next season and is negotiating with NBC.

DUPONT SHOW OF THE MONTH will continue next season on CBS with nine 90-minute live productions scheduled. Playhouse 90 will also continue and all programs will be televised "live".

DIAL SPINNERS

HALLMARK HALL OF FAME presents "Dial M For Murder" at 9:30 Friday night on NBC-TV. Maurice Evans recreates his sinister Broadway role in the play which has been a hit all over the world, including a British TV performance.

SCIENCE CONGRESS OF Western New York will be televised at 12 noon Saturday on WBEN-TV (Ch. 4). This hour-long special telecast from Buffalo will bring the finals of the area's Science Congress for junior-senior high school students.

UB ROUND TABLE at 7 p. m. Saturday on Channel 4 will discuss "The United States and the Canadian Elections".

WIDE WIDE WORLD will take a 90-minute look at Hollywood's star system at 4 to 5:30 Sunday afternoon on NBC. Academy-award winner Joanne Woodward will participate in "A Star's Story".

GREAT CHALLENGE, CBS-TV at 5 p. m. Sunday, will present a symposium of experts to discuss "Government and the American Process".

HANSEL & GRETEL will be seen at 6:30 Sunday night on NBC-TV. The new musical version of the captivating children's tale stars Red Buttons. Others in the cast are Rise Stevens, Rudy Vallee, Barbara Cook, Paul Hartman and Stubby Kaye.

TIMEX ALL-STAR JAZZ SHOW will be seen Wednesday night, April 30, at 10 p. m. This special hour-long CBS production will present fourteen of the world's top jazz artists with Garry Moore as host.

PREMIERE - "Jefferson Drum", the new adult Western series starring Jeff Richards, makes its debut on NBC-TV this Friday night at 8 p. m.

KANE SHADES WARREN IN DUAL TRACK MEET

Although they captured fewer first places, the Kane track team nudged the Dragon tracksters, 64 to 63, on Beatty Field last Tuesday. Warren outscored the Wolves, 9 to 6, in first places but the Kane squad copped 10 second places while the Blue and White came up with only three second place finishers. It was the Dragon's first loss in three meets.

BOWLING

K. OF C. NATIONAL TOURNEY
Joe Gerarde, Warren, was bumped from his top spot in two events of the K. of C. Eastern Division tournament in Buffalo last week end. Gerarde, bowling in league competition for the first time this year, had rolled into first place in the singles and all-events, handicap division, when Warren K. of C. keglers competed in the tournament in March. The tourney has one more week to run.

Ed Switzer, Metuchen, N.J., rolled 780 to gain top spot in the singles last week end. Gerarde holds second place with 749.

Vinny Stark, Buffalo, N.Y., recorded 2043 in all-events last week end to take that lead. Gerarde is second with 1998.

Other handicap leaders in the tournament are Fred Schwab and Joe Salm, Buffalo, 1347, doubles; and Stark's, Buffalo, 3193, team.

Leaders in the scratch division are Sam Taylor, Middletown, N.Y., 665, singles; Ben Holtz and Ed Ervolina, Buffalo, 1278, doubles; Ervolina, 1894, all-events; and Holtz's, Buffalo, 2861, team.

200 CLUB TOURNAMENT

Jaye Pappalardo rolled 742 to win the handicap tournament of the 200 Club of the Warren Woman's Bowling Association. She received a trophy and a cash prize for her winning efforts.

Other winners were Joyce McMullen, 734; Rose Hand, 728; Vi Sterling, 722; Addie Okruch, 716; Millie Baldensperger, 712; Ann McAvoy, 711; Barb Weiland, 704; Stella Cerra, 701; Connie Strandberg, 700; Rose Juliano, 699; and Lois Kifer, 693.

Special prizes for high single games out of the money were won by Shirley Fitch, 211; Helen Peters, 210; Jeannette Harvey, 210; and Margaret Drivas, 207.

TOURNAMENT TRAVELERS

Bowling is rolling down its spring tournament lanes with the end not far away. Most local leagues are winding it up this week and the tournament travelers continue to ramble.

The Elks will go to Fort Wayne on May 10 and 11 for their big one. Several groups of leading local spitters will be shooting in the Golden Trail sweeps in Erie and Jamestown. They will be at Pine Street this Sunday and will go to Erie's Frontier Lanes on May 4. Then back to Ten Pin on May 16.

Meanwhile, a few area keglers are shooting in the 185 and under sweeps. Best of the Warren county efforts is the 1186 posted by Joe Kulbacki, of Irvine, in the Ten Pin 185 and under tourney. He was in 19th position last week end.

MEN AT PENN

Building Blocks won the best two out of three games roll off over Dykes Dairy for the league championship of the Men's City. Myer Pappalardo rolled 601 for Building Blocks and Glenn Grosch hit 551 for Dykes.

In the first match in the Men's City, Joe Massa recorded 605. Pete Juliano recorded 246 and 621 in the second match.

TYPE ME AN OMELET

A tape controlled life is just ahead of you. Machines that run according to the signals punched into a tape already are all around us. This paper is set on them. A typist operates a typewriter, a tape is made, and it in turn will make any width column you want and in any type you prefer.

We soon expect to have one that will go through a similar procedure, but the tape will make photographs of the copy instead of a typed strip. This will photographically produce ads, headlines, and copy.

But this is only the obvious part of the development. The same tape, composed at typewriter speed by a fast typist, can tell many kinds of machines what to do. We conceive of the day when our lady will type her instructions on a tape, place the tape in a kitchen machine, set a timer, and at the correct moment the tape will start rolling. A mechanized kitchen will swing into action and dinner will be served.

The house also may be cleaned and the lawn mowed while home owners are socializing elsewhere. You take it from there, and may your dreams not have lawnmowers chasing you upstairs where vacuum cleaners await you in the dark with open mouth. A loused up tape could turn home sweet home into a nightmare.

Already the tape has entered into your entertainment world and some of the results we once wrote of here have come to pass. Television has been using tape on which to record both pictures and sound in a limited way, but the idea is spreading as machines are perfected.

KDKA in Pittsburgh is the latest to add an Ampex Corporation VR-1000. This is a machine which by push-button control records, reproduces, and uses no film. The magnetically recorded pictures can be looked at immediately.

Such pictures are of high fidelity and are said to look like the original live program. It does not require much imagination to see what is shaping up in our lives.

It won't be many years before you will be able to record not only the sound from your tv set, but also the picture. Going a step further you will take pictures on tape, along with the sound, and will be able to play both back immediately.

The tape recorder of today will be replaced by a tape recorder that will have clear pictures as well as sound, and the movie camera of tomorrow will be electronic. You will not need to send it away for processing. You will need do no more than project it onto a screen with a machine which will read it and reproduce the sound and pictures.

The tape so used looks exactly like that on your home tape recorders. It is much wider, but looks and feels the same. A piece about nine inches long will carry over a dozen pictures. Thirty of these pictures appear on your set every second. Which suggests it will require about two feet of tape to keep your screen occupied every second.

Expensive? Yes, but not near as expensive as film. Production will make this a cheap tape, and there will be no processing costs. We have a bit of it in our office if you are curious enough to have a look.

The tape is so thin that a twelve inch reel can provide an hour of program. Four magnetic recording heads in a swiftly rotating disc record the picture. The disc whirls at 106 miles per hour, while the tape glides at 15 inches per second.

The tape can be edited, and "fluffs" removed. The value to tv stations are so many that few program directors have fully realized them, and new advantages are uncovered with daily use. An obvious one is the ability to tape commercials and to easily splice them into taped programs. An entire day of programming could be thus arranged, a button pressed, and away we go to the ball game . . . for more pictures . . . to be shown tomorrow.

In fact, the first use of the Ampex VR-1000 by KDKA was the shooting of the Pirates homecoming, which took place at the airport. The pictures were taken at the airport, and were electronically transmitted to the station, where they went onto tape, and were sent out into the ozone for your set's reception. Another program recently seen that was taped was the Red Mill.

Obviously the punsters are about to become entangled.

SEVEN WEEKS OF DRAMA

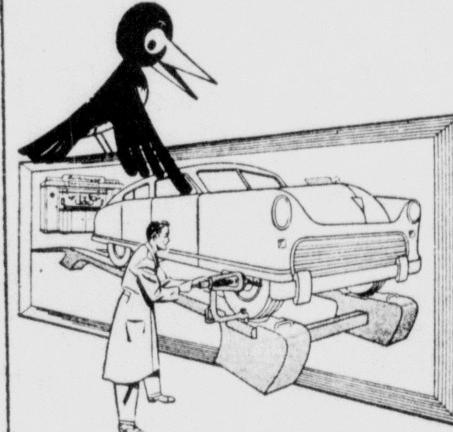

Seven plays will be presented this summer by the Chautauqua Repertory theatre, a longer season than ever before. It starts on July 2 with Graham Greene's "The Potting Shed" and ends on August 16 with Agatha Christie's "The Mouse-trap".

The Cleveland Playhouse provides the players for this company, which is directed by Fredric McConnell, and is seen in the 1400-seat Norton Hall. In connection with the repertory theatre there also will be a theatre school, with Syracuse University undergraduate and graduate credit. And there is a junior rehearsal group for students from six to sixteen.

Other plays to be seen this summer are: "The Desk Set" by William Marchant; "Six Characters in Search of An Author" by Luigi Pirandello; "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams; "The Reluctant Debutante" by William Douglas Home, and "The Taming of the Shrew" by guess whom.

NO TROUT?

If anyone got a trout worth photographing the opening week of the season he didn't show it to us. And that is a record. Usually several proud anglers will pop into the office with beauties, or at least what they rate as such. If we have agreed, you have seen them pictured.

We have seen few nicer opening weeks. Starting with the one on which we had to crack ice in Morrison run in order to dip our hook we can go up through quite a range of experiences, including snow, cold rain, and hub-deep mud. This year was different and those who went abroad must have been aglow in summer sun, so hot perhaps that a lazy stay in the shade proved as enticing as the thought of a darting line.

Given cool shade and a laughing brook,

Who cares if he hauls in something to cook?

You lie there alone,
Not even a phone,
And the trout have a ball with the meat on your hook.

NO MORE HUNTING

There are one thousand Pennsylvania hunters who won't be out there with a gun next fall. They have had their licenses revoked, some for three years. Most of them lost the privilege because they hunted deer in closed season. The next most common violation was hunting without a license. In their case we wonder what they have lost. They probably will do it again. Certainly will if they hunt.

Since January 1, 1955, the number of convicted game law violators losing their licenses is 3,636. Another 200 have lost their chance to hunt or trap because of their part in hunting accidents.

ARMS INSTRUCTIONS

About July of this year, schools sportsmen's organizations and other groups will be told that instruction in the proper use of firearms are available to them at no cost. Forty-eight game protectors will go to school in June when the National Rifle Association will instruct them without charge. They then will become instructors for Pennsylvania demonstrations in safety.

BETTER GAME LANDS

It is believed that improved game lands will result from a change now in the making. Twenty-two former game protectors will be assigned the specific duty of land management. This will leave other wardens free to enforce the law and will result in full time land improvement work under the management of the specialists.

Planting, timber cutting, material purchase, equipment care, and many other duties, including the supervision of the daily corps of employees busy with this work, will keep them moving. Financing this work is $1.25 of each license fee and $1.00 of the $1.15 collected for antlerless deer licenses.

In addition the federal government gives us between $400,000 and $600,000 annually for the purchase and improvement of land. This is obtained from excise taxes on arms and ammunition.

In fact, of the money the state spends on approved land projects 75 cents of every dollar comes from the federal government. Pennsylvanians spend only 25 cents. The money used for this purpose comes from gas well production royalties levied against wells on state game lands.

With the state spending about 3 per cent of its budget on the acquisition and development of land the need for supervisors to give their full time to the work is made apparent. The split duties of game wardens will be brought to an end this June when the twenty-two chosen men assume the full responsibility for this work.

SPACE EXPLORER... 1975?

This could be your son. But without a first-rate education, he hasn't a chance to lead America to the stars. And a first-rate education is America's strongest defense!

Outer space is as close as the nearest classroom. To assure the future welfare of our nation, we must re-examine our standards.

Some of our schools are excellent right now. To raise the others to their level, ideas are needed — and money.

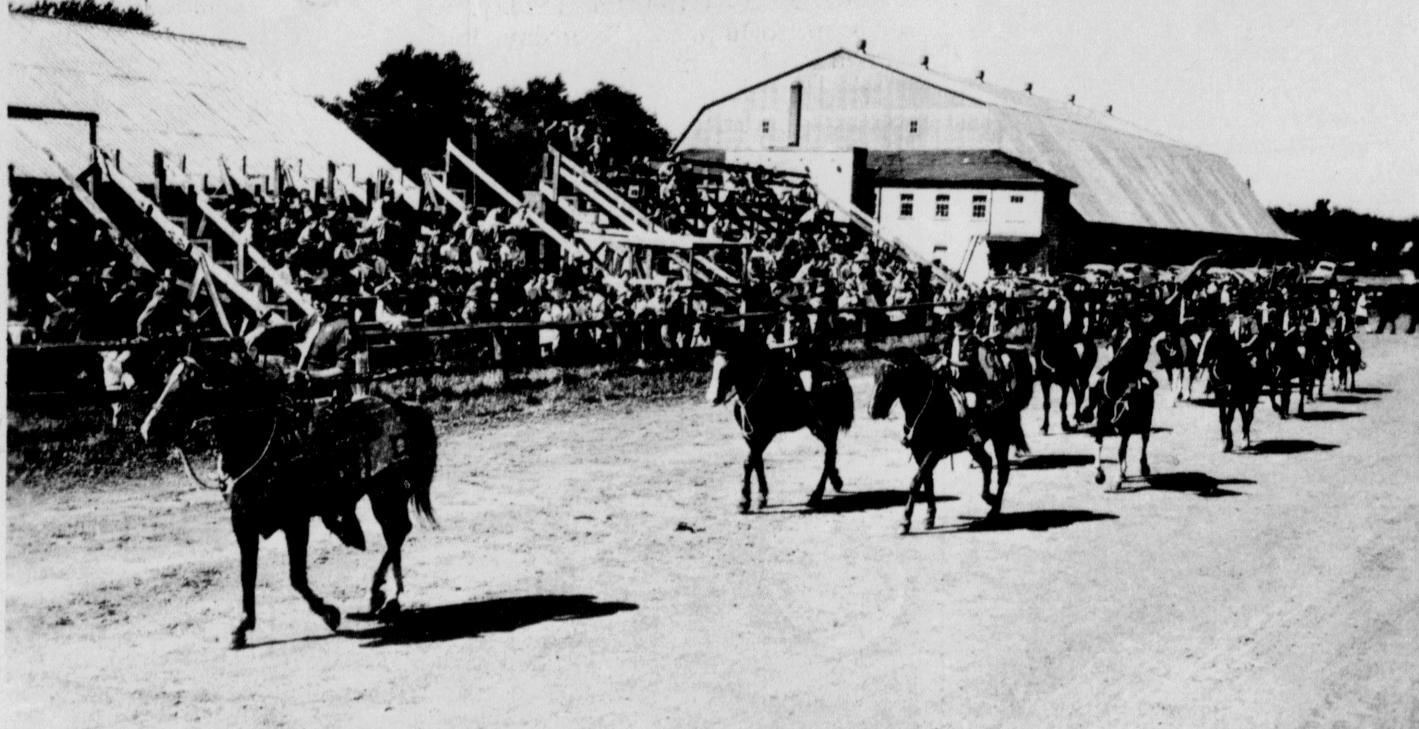

Start thinking — and acting! Remember — every cent we spend is for the future of our children, and our nation.

COMPETITION from foreign makes of cars has forced some manufacturers to at least import models to meet the demand. This is an Opel, imported by Buick and on sale in Warren at C. C. Smith. It has a four-cylinder engine, more space than most importations, fog lights, copper plating beneath the chrome to prevent rust, easily adjusted windows, a fair-sized rear compartment, door-light controls, and over thirty miles per gallon. The price? About $2100.
